

This website reflects archived data based upon Plan Bay Area 2040, a prior regional plan adopted in July 2017 and superseded by Plan Bay Area 2050 in October 2021. For up-to-date projections at the county and sub-county levels, please visit planbayarea.org.

Projections 2040

Forecasts for Population, Household and Employment for the Nine County San Francisco Bay Area Region

ASSOCIATION OF
BAY AREA
GOVERNMENTS

METROPOLITAN
TRANSPORTATION
COMMISSION

PROJECTIONS 2040

Welcome to projections.planbayarea.org, an archived website developed as part of Plan Bay Area 2040. Plan Bay Area 2040 was adopted in July 2017 but is no longer the region's official plan, as it was superseded by Plan Bay Area 2050 in October 2021.

Given that data on this website is no longer relevant, we encourage you to refer to the final adopted Plan Bay Area 2050 instead, which includes an adopted growth pattern at the county and sub-county levels for households and jobs, comparing the 2015 base year with a 2050 horizon year. Official projections from Plan Bay Area 2050 can be found in the Final Plan Bay Area 2050 Forecasting and Modeling Report under Appendix 1

At the same time, we recognize that local jurisdictions and other partner organizations may need to develop more localized projections or conduct travel demand modeling with more detailed data. While Plan Bay Area 2050's official growth pattern focuses only on the county and sub-county levels, traffic analysis zone (TAZ1454) data is available as a reference point for local modeling and analysis purposes. Traffic analysis zones roughly align with census tract level geographies in terms of scale. While not considered part of the final adopted Plan Bay Area 2050, this TAZ1454 data can be found on MTC/ABAG's Box Drive

Thank you for your interest in this archived website - we encourage you to utilize the projections data provided above which aligns with the currently adopted long-range plan. Should you have any questions, you may reach out to MTC/ABAG staff by directing your email to info@planbayarea.org to ensure a timely response.

